Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

Sited on a hilltop, facing east onto Maryland Route 2/4, this is another Gray family house that dates from the Colonial Revival era. It is a two-story, framed and weatherboarded, rectangular-plan, double-pile, three-bay gable-roofed dwelling with six-over-six double-hung sash windows. The roof is covered with asphalt shingles. The doorway is distinguished by a pedimented, and segmental-arched stoop. Its central location suggests that the house has a central-passage plan. There is an original brick chimney on the south gable end. A one-story modern cross wing is connected to the original house on the south end by a hyphen.
